

POETRY.

From the Lady's Book,
LINES ON A YOUNG LADY
Reposing in Death.

BY T. A. WORRALL.

Oh, think not the spirit,
Which lately was there—
In that image so beautiful,
In that bosom so fair!

Can pass like a dream,
In the cold earth decay'd—
The mind cannot perish,
Of so lovely a maid!

Those eyes in their glance,
Were more bright than the gem—
And my heart beat more wildly,
As I gaz'd upon them.

Those lips, now so cold,
And which told me her love,
Seem so like what they once were,
That I still think they move.

There's a brightness that lingers,
Like the last star of night;
Still shining—reluctant
To pass from the sight.

Oh, such are the beautiful,
When hush'd is the breath;
And the purest in feeling,
Look loveliest in death!

The calmness—the sweetness,
Which cling round the face,
When the life-spark retires,
The mourner may trace!

Oh, could that bright spirit,
All lovely and fair,
Appear as it now is,
What beauty were there!

I weep not—for sweeter
'Tis thus to depart,
Than to live on, and linger
With grief round the heart!

Where the good are at rest
In the day without night;
There her pure soul now breathes
In the spirit of light!

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

Solomon Benigo was discovered sitting at an unreasonable hour, on the top of a wood pile at the Drawbridge. The night was warm and serene, the stars winked gently at drunken Solomon, the waves of the Delaware murmured against the wharves in hoarse and drowsy tones, and the aromatic gutters leaped into the flashing stream; with a voice almost articulate of perfect joy. Not a discord presumed to mar the harmony of the midnight hour save sullen tones of the district watch proclaiming the hurried course of never tiring time; yet even these were softened down to a perfect keeping with the scene. The dogs walked silently and even the hogs grunted their delight in modulation. Cares that killed a cat, if we may credit the immortal Shakespeare, seemed to have shut up, and peace ruled supreme in every breast, but that of Solomon, who sat on the wood pile, like patience on a monument. Alas, said he, as he drew his revell'd sleeve athwart his beaming nose with a scientific back handed motion—"alas, philosophy without liquor is no great shakes. Was there ever a philosopher without money or credit? I doubt it. Why then should I war against my nature and patch my ragged fortunes with philosophy?—There is not a chap in town who would take philosophy's promise to pay for a three cent snuff. But I must break this silence. Thoughts must not strong when silence gives consent. Hurra! fire dog ketcher! murder, Henry Clay and General Jackson!"

The watch who had been observing Solomon from the shelter of a neighboring lamp now rushed upon him, and commanded him to hold his tongue.

"Oh ho! you are come. Very well Watchy, will you treat, and stand a drop of summat good!"

"No I won't. You must make less noise and give an account of yourself."

"Grief is dry and I am a buster, number 4. But sit down and I'll tell you a story of a life, that will frighten you out of seven years growth. I have not had a glass of any thing to mention these two hours. That's none of your business, you say however—"

"Why you can't stand now. What made you blue?"

"Sorrow, sorrow is worse than mixing liquors before breakfast. Sorrow has weakened my legs and destroyed the balance of power. Sorrow—the washerwoman, sorrow—has shaken her indigo bag over my fate, and as you say, I am blue—blue as a r-r-r-r."

"You must go to the Eastern watch house."

"Am I; Solomon, so fallen as to knock under most? Well, well exert your brief authority."

"Why don't you come?"

"That's your affair. Do you expect me to come for to go? You must come to take me. I am a legal tender, and you have no alternative but to take me. That's into you, my lark. Give us a touch of Rola—I'll play the child."

"Don't be a fool, up and trot."

"Locomotives never go without steam. If you will treat, I will walk. That's the long and the short of it."

Assistance and a wheelbarrow was procured and the philosopher took his seat singing.

"Farewell thou coast of glory,
But before they arrived at the point propoed, Solomon was fast asleep. He was fined and dismissed.—Philadelphia Pa per.

THE interest of William Johnston, Esq. in this establishment, having been transferred to John Christy, the Free Press will in future be conducted by PEARCE & CHRISTY. The political complexion of this paper will not be changed—the editors being firm in their determination to preserve its neutral character.—The transfer from Mr Johnston to Christy, has been made with the hope of ensuring the continuation of a newspaper in Carrollton: And with this view, the editors appeal to the people of the county for a patronage equal to the merits and importance of their enterprise. One of the editors being a practical printer, and having determined to devote his time exclusively to the interest of the paper, it is confidently hoped that, with a reasonable increase of their subscription list, the Carroll Free Press may be continued to the mutual advantage of both subscribers and publishers.

Of the convenience and necessity of a public Journal, published at the county seat, every citizen of the county must be convinced; and the editor trusts that, the people of Carroll will sustain them in their efforts to promote public good, and to secure an honest maintenance.

Fourth Year of Waldie's Library.

BOOKS BY MAIL!

Prospectus of two new Volumes for 1836.

THREE years have now elapsed since the proprietor of Waldie's Select Circulating Library laid before the public his original prospectus for a valuable library, the great features of which were cheapness, and the facility of a rapid transportation by mail. The most ample success has attended the enterprise, and the effects upon the reading community, it is believed, have been wholesome.

The fourth year will commence on the first Tuesday of January 1836, at which period it will be necessary to determine the additional amount of copies to be printed, subscriptions being taken only from January of each year. The entire success of the Library is the best guarantee that can be given of its continuance. It was the first to supply books by mail at a mere per centage of their former cost; it has outlived more than thirty puerile attempts at imitation; and has now an extensive list of patrons who are of the most solid and valuable class of citizens in every part of the Union, as well as in foreign countries.

The object of Waldie's Library, its use and its purpose, is enjoyment liberal and intellectual. To all who love a mental banquet, without being compelled to depend on places of public resort, this publication furnishes a most valuable desideratum, supplying polite literature of character to enlarge and improve the mind. The time and attention of the editor, himself a reader from inclination as well as duty, are devoted to the procurement of works of an elevated standard of intellect which may be admitted into every family without hesitation by the most fastidious, and become a rallying point for all its members, promoting social belles lettres reading and conversation, the variety thus collected from the whole mass of published works, mostly new, embraces Biography, Novels, Voyages and Travels, Sketches, Tales, and Select History, personal memoirs of extraordinary individuals, and curious adventure, &c. &c. An amount equal to fifty London duodecimo volumes is thus annually furnished in weekly numbers, at a cost only equal to one of the London works. The plan thus embraces the whole range of popular literature, and the work has now become so universally diffused in every part of the Union as to form no inconsiderable portion of literature of the country, and with which an acquaintance has become really necessary for those who mix in society.

The Library as now conducted disseminates books to all parts of the country in from five to six weeks after their issue in London. Five dollars per annum expended in this way will supply good reading for a whole circle or family; for a cent and a half a day, postage included, a duodecimo book is sent every week, making in the course of the year more than three volumes of Rees's Cyclopaedia. One volume of the Library, containing from fifteen to twenty entire works, can be bound at an expense little exceeding that of binding either separately, and constitutes a concentrated collection forming a never failing resource of amusement and instruction, and which must always be worth the price that has been paid for it. The most ample testimony has been spontaneously afforded that this work has contributed, to the pleasure of thousands, who but for the resource it afforded, must have been left with minds unoccupied, or thrown into unprofitable and uncongenial society. This immense supply of periodical reading has thus been welcomed everywhere as a means of improvement, and a substitute for the small talk of idle listlessness so apt to employ a large portion of the time of the many.

Waldie's Library is published every Tuesday, accompanied by a cover of four quarto pages, entitled, The Journal of Belles Lettres, containing reviews of new books, literary intelligence of all kinds, tales, lists of new books, &c. thus combining the advantages of a Library, and amusement of a magazine and newspaper; the whole for $5 per annum, or clubs of five individuals obtain five copies for $20, a reduction which pays the postage Payment always in advance.

Waldie's Port Folio and Companion to the Library.

This periodical contains half as much matter as the Library, at half its price; or both are furnished to clubs of five for $6. Its contents consist of a reprint of the best matter from the London Magazines and Reviews, more especially Chamber's Edinburgh Journal. Its object is popular instruction and amusement, combined in such a manner as to enlist the feelings of every member of the social circle. It enjoys an extensive circulation; price to single subscribers not taking the Library, $2 50, postage paid.

A very limited number of complete sets of Library and Port Folio, at the original subscription price, may be had for a short period. The Library has been published three years and the Port Folio one; an individual may now form a club by himself, and by paying for the past three years and the volumes for 1836 of the Library, and the Port Folio for 1835 and 1836, the whole can be had for $20. For this amount of matter may be procured which public approbation has stamped as truly valuable and unique of its kind. This privilege must, however, be of brief continuance.

Address, post paid,
ADAM WALDIE,
Seventh, two doors South of Chestnut street, Philad.

The Museum of Foreign Literature and Science, price $6 00 per annum, the Library and Port Folio will be all supplied for $12 00.

THIRD VOLUME OF THE OHIO FARMER

AND WESTERN HORTICULTURIST.

In presenting a prospectus for the third volume of the Ohio Farmer to the public, the Editor conceives it unnecessary to enter into a minute detail of its character and object. These have been clearly evinced since its commencement, and from the high testimonials received from Agriculturists and Horticulturists of the first standing and intelligence, he is not without a hope that his labors have been of some service to the cause of Western Agriculture, and that there has been, at least partial satisfaction to those who patronize the work.

There was never a period of deeper interest to the cultivators of the soil in the great valley of the Mississippi than the present. There never was a time when intelligence could be put to better uses—when knowledge was of greater advantage. It is the era of advancement in the art and science of the cultivation of the earth, and the improvement of useful animals. And he who refuses to keep pace with the times, by informing himself of what is transpiring around him, will lose more than half the pleasures and advantages of his own age.—The certainty of a ready market and a rich reward for all the productions of the earth should be a double stimulant to increase the quantity.

The OHIO FARMER will be devoted to ORIGINAL ESSAYS, and articles selected from the best works, and occasionally illustrated by ENGRAVINGS. No agricultural work ever published in the West has been so liberally supplied with original articles, the most of which have been copied and received a wide circulation in other papers. The culture of soil—improvement of animals—of garden vegetables—of Agricultural implements, and Geology Botany, Chemistry, &c. &c. will receive due attention.

SILK.—As the culture of this new article of wealth and industry, is exciting universal interest through the whole country, we contemplate devoting a sufficient portion of the Volume of the Farmer to this subject, to give all new beginners a fair start, who may wish to enter into the business, either on a large or a small scale, from the sowing of the mulberry seed to the reeling and manufacturing of the cocoons, colouring &c.

Each Volume of this paper is furnished with a Title Page and Index, expressly for binding, and will make about 200 pages. The first number of the Third Volume will be published on the 1st day of January, 1836.

CONDITIONS.

The Farmer is published twice a month at $1.00 in advance. All notes on solvent Banks received. Payment may be made at our risk, free of postage. Persons obtaining 5 subscribers and forwarding the money, shall receive a copy for their trouble.

Editors, who wish to receive the Third Volume will please publish the above, and forward their papers for exchange.

Columbus, Ohio, November, 1835.
